Zotero is a free citation and reference management software developed by academics, for academics. It is similar to EndNote in many ways, except Zotero is free and open-source. Beyond the obvious functions like automatically importing references, formatting your citations while you write, and automatically creating and updating your bibliography in real time, Zotero can also store and organize your library of PDF articles (and other kinds of documents), and serve as an online platform for shared/group reference folders. You are invited to attend this workshop as a quick-start guide to Zotero. We will install Zotero and begin using its core functionalities, so bring your internet-connected laptop (Windows or Mac) with Microsoft Word or OpenOffice installed. All academic writers, from beginning students to experienced scholars, will benefit from this workshop.
